

Cancellation

As soon as you pay your membership subscription and you have access to the full features of Brave Questions, we cannot offer a cancellation on the membership subscription fee that has been already paid. Under exceptional circumstances (such as fraudulent use of a credit card) we can refund a transaction, on a case by case basis. Refund decisions are at our discretion and our decisions are final. Brave Questions reserves the right to refuse cancellation requests at its own discretion. You may cancel your membership subscription at any stage by accessing the 'My Account' page and following the 'Wish to close your account' prompts.

Returns

In the event you cannot use the Brave Questions site because of an error by Brave Questions, we will endeavour to correct the situation as soon as possible. However, Brave Questions accepts no liability for any errors or omissions to any documents you download. Any membership subscription fee returns are at our discretion. In the event of any problems that may arise in the full use of the Brave Questions site, we encourage you to contact us and let us know, so we may assist you. When assessing whether to accept a return of any subscription fee we will meet all our obligations under the applicable New Zealand law. In the event you have changed your mind about your membership subscription, we are not obligated to provide a refund.